

Terri Cooper and Oklahoma City Philharmonic music director Alexander Mickelthwate at an orchestra rehearsal at the Civic Center Music Hall.

Photo by Brandon Snider

Sustaining the Arts for Future Generations

Terri Cooper has long held a deep appreciation for the arts. She began volunteering for arts organizations at an early age and continues to contribute her time and resources to cultural institutions in Oklahoma City, including the Oklahoma City Philharmonic.

Through her involvement with various nonprofits, Terri became aware of the importance of endowment and began making gifts to help sustain a number of community organizations.

“Through the power of endowment, the Oklahoma City Community Foundation enables gifts of all sizes to make a significant impact,” Terri said.

OKLAHOMA CITY COMMUNITY FOUNDATION
Your Connection for Good

